Our visiting author Kyle Mewburn will be in school on Monday May 19. I am told his presentations are funny, informative and inspirational, becoming more in-depth and complex as the age of the audience increases. For the really young students he will tell some stories about his childhood and read a couple of his picture books. For the older students he plots the course of his life from a boisterous boy to award-winning author (despite many setbacks and disappointments). He will explain the writing process in a lively way and offer some glimpses into the publishing process (including first drafts, sketches, mock-ups). Naturally he will talk about books and writing, but his broader theme is about success coming from perseverance and determination as much as from talent. S. Butler
